SCHOENBRUNN CHURCH — The village of Schoenbrunn, built in 1772, was the first town in Ohio established under the direction of the white man. The village where David Zeisberger and his Moravian missionaries lived before the Revolutionary War has been rebuilt by the Ohio Historical Society. Among the buildings open to the public daily are several log cabins, a school building and Ohio's first church. Schoenbrunn Village is located in New Philadelphia, Ohio on Rts. 8, 16 and 250.
